Background

The film industry is risky but rewarding industry. Production decisions like genre, budget, and target audience can make or break a movie's financial success. For us as Silverline Studios entering this competitive landscape, data driven decisions must be made, not guesswork, to ensure an edge over competitors and overall commercial success.

Business Understanding

- 1 Which genres consistently deliver the highest global revenue?
- 2 Which studios are on an upward trend and what can we learn from them
- 3 Can we predict the Total Gross of a movie based on its genre?
- 4 Does runtime significantly affect audience rating, total gross, and if so by how much, and what can we learn from it?

Objectives: How can we hit our goals

- 1 Analyze movie profitability trends by examining the relationship between features like runtime etc
- 2 Yearly Trend Analysis
- 3 Identify key factors that contribute to a movies commercial success
- 4 Competition & Niche Analysis: How are studios fairing, what are they focusing on, and how are they performing,
- 5 Analyze genres against other factors affecting movie revenue and ratings
- 6 Do we position ourself as an indie studio or an big player based on our analysis of both

Data

The dataset used in this analysis is the IMDB database, and the Box Office Movies dataset which after merging contain information about various movies, including their titles, genres, budgets, runtimes, ratings, and box office revenues

Top Grossing Studios

- WB has consistently high been having a growth trajectory. Proven by trends strength and significance
- This should advice our marketing branding teams to study their promotion strategy and see if they can replicate it even if on a smaller scale.

Is this a good industry to invest in

- WB has consistently high been having a growth trajectory. Proven by trends strength and significance
- This should advice our marketing branding teams to study their promotion strategy and see if they can replicate it even if on a smaller scale.

Top Rated Movie Lengths

- There is a statistically significant but weak correlation between runtime category and ratings
- In as much as shorter films are rated higher, the difference is not substantial enough to warrant a focus on runtime. Instead, we should focus really significant factors

Predicting Genres' Total Gross

- We should clearly ignore War and Sport movies as their predicted revenue is lower than what we currently have
- The Musical genre has a really high predicted gross vs actual and its the number 1 genre to look in to maximize revenue

Popularity of movies over time

- Marketing in the industry has gone down over the years shown by the stark decline recently
- This is a good opportunity for us to take advantage of this and market our movies to the audience

Conclusion

- 1 Silverline Studio should focus on really significant factors instead of lightly correlated factors like movie runtime length
- 2 The general trajectory in revenue generated over the years is going up indicating that this is a good industry to invest in.
- 3 Spend more on marketing since its proven that the industry has neglected marketing but it significantly affects our revenue
- 4 Invest on the genres that have a higher predicted gross than the actual gross
- 5 Emulate work ethic and other cultures of the Warner Bros as its one of the few with a strong and proven upward trend
